Areas of expertise include building strong community relationships, implementing innovative crime-fighting strategies, and training leaders in law enforcement

Licensed attorney for over 25 years

Served as president of police officers' union

Anne E. Kirkpatrick is a progressive and innovative leader with more than 33 years of experience in law enforcement. She is a veteran Chief of Police, serving three cities over a span of 16 years.

Kirkpatrick began her career in 1982 as a patrol officer in Memphis, Tennessee, at a time when there were very few women on the force. Following a move to Seattle to pursue a law degree, she worked for eight years as a police officer and then a sergeant for the Redmond Police Department. During this time she was named officer of the year, earned her law degree while working full time, and served as president of the local police officers' union.

Kirkpatrick has a proven track record of leading a diverse group of agencies in Washington State, each for a significant period of time. She served as Chief of Police in Ellensburg from 1996 to 2001, in Federal Way from 2001 to 2006, and led the Spokane Police Department from 2006 to 2012.

Most recently, Kirkpatrick managed the day-to-day operations of a large, urban sheriff's office as Chief Deputy of King County, Washington, from 2012 to 2014. She now focuses on leadership training of high-level law enforcement executives in her role as a national instructor for the FBI's leadership program.

Kirkpatrick earned a B.A. in business administration, a master's degree in counseling, and a Juris Doctorate degree.
